THREE ADELPHI MEN ARE HELD BEFORE MAYOR

Wreck Fence at Schreiner Residence, Chase Goes Into Chillicothe.

DIVIDE ESTATE

Chicken Thefts Are Reported To City Police.

BULLETIN
Paul Finley, of Adelphi, arrested by Chillicothe police late Wednesday evening, following his escape from Deputy Sheriff Miller M. Fissell and Officer John Seall, was fined $100 and costs on a charge of operating a motor vehicle in a reckless manner, in a hearing before Mayor B. T. Hedges late Friday. In default of payment he was committed to the county jail until fine and costs are paid.

Three Adelphi men are being held in the city jail pending hearing before Mayor B. T. Hedges, on charges of driving while intoxicated, reckless driving and investigation.

Paul Finley is charged with driving while intoxicated and operating a motor vehicle in a reckless manner, and his brother Nick Finley and Otho Knece are held for investigation.

The three men were arrested by Chillicothe police following a chase by Deputy Sheriff Miller M. Fissell and Officer John Seall, who received a call from E. A. Schreiner, of Franklin, near the Chillicothe elevator, who stated that they had run into his fence, and torn down about 150 feet. Fissell and Seall chased the trio, about 15 miles out of town, but were unable to overtake them.

They called Chillicothe police officers, who arrested them when they entered Chillicothe.

DIVIDE $10,000 ESTATE AMONG FAMILY

An estate estimated to be worth $10,000, will be divided between her husband and three children, according to the last will and testament of the late Jennette Runkle, of Harrison-twp.

After all funeral expenses have been paid, the deceased requested that her automobile be given to her daughter, Agnes L. Riegel, and all residue of all property of all kinds bequeathed to her husband, Albert M. Runkle. At his death, all of the property is to be divided equally among her three children, E. L. Runkle, Agnes L. Riegel and Victor W. Runkle.

The will was written Nov. 10, 1930 in the presence of Sarah E. Alsbaugh and Mrs. John N. Hedges of Ashville.

Albert M. Runkle was appointed executor by Judge E. A. Brown.

CHICKEN THEFTS REPORTED

Several chicken thefts were reported to police headquarters over Thanksgiving.

W. A. Peterson, S Court-st., reported that someone entered his chicken coop in the rear of his residence, and stole eight chickens, and cut off the heads of several in the coop. The thieves were trailed a distance down Western-ave, but the track of blood, was finally lost.

Lawrence Warner, E Main-st., also reported that someone entered his chicken pen, and stole a chicken Wednesday evening.

Members of the police department were investigating the thefts Thursday and Friday but found no trace of the thieves.

HELD FOR NON-PAYMENT

Woodrow Owen, of Monroe-twp., is in county jail in default of payment of a fine of $25 and costs imposed on him by Justice of Peace Nelson Winifough of Monroe-twp., on a charge of hunting without a license.

He was arrested by Clarence Francis, game protector, Wednesday morning.

High School Teacher Killed at Bath, N. Y.

Twenty-four-year-old Elizabeth Rabinoff, teacher of French in Habersham High School, Bath, N. Y., was found shot to death in a cottage at Lake Salubria. Lawrence Guiney was also found severely wounded and was taken to a hospital, where his unconscious condition made it impossible to obtain details of the tragedy.

WAR VET SHOT FROM AMBUSH

Hold Wife and Roomer For Questioning; Man Carried $2,500 Life Insurance

MARIETTA, O., Nov. 28.—Ambushed and shot as he stepped into the doorway of his Chapinville home, George Gourley, 38, World War Veteran, was reported dying in a hospital here today, while police held one of his roomers, a man named Carle, for questioning. Mrs. Carle, wife of the victim, for questioning. Gourley carried $2,500 in life insurance, authorities learned.

Gourley was shot at close range as he was going to a well for water. His assailant fled and officers tracked him for a half mile in the snow. The trial was lost, however, when the tracks became obliterated by the sweeping wind. Examination of Gourley showed that the charge from the gun tore through his left arm and into his chest. Gangrene developed and the shattered arm had to be amputated at the shoulder.

Gourley is a stone quarryman and the father of two children.

MRS. MILLER OFF FOR U.S.

Aviatrix Takes Off to Miami In Face of Strong Headwinds Friday.

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—Mrs. Keith Miller, well-known Australian aviatrix, hopped off for Miami, Fla., today.

Strong headwinds were reported along the route.

Mrs. Keith Miller hopes to reach Pittsburgh in three hops. She arrived here Sunday, making the flight from Pittsburgh in three jumps.

The aviatrix had planned to start the return trip yesterday, but strong winds prevented the take-off.

REPORT ALLEGED GAMBLER ROBBED

It is reported that during the course of a gambling game in the south-end of the city at 4 a. m. Friday a participant in the game was struck and robbed of $100. Nothing has been reported to the police department concerning the alleged robbery.

FIRST TERMERS IN LEGISLATURE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 28.—Of the 160 members of the Ohio legislature convening here Jan. 5, 50 are "first-termers," or persons who have never served as senators before, a survey disclosed today.

The Ohio Senate will have 32 members, 10 of whom never served in the legislature. Eight of these are Democrats and two are Republicans.

In the House of Representatives, 70 of the 125 members will be "first-termers." Of these, 42 are Democrats and 28 are Republicans.

ORGANIZATION PLANS TO AID CITY'S NEEDY

Letter Is Sent to Different Service and Charitable Clubs Through City.

GROUP FORMED

Records To Be Kept of All Disbursement by City.

That Circleville's charitable organizations are planning relief measures to aid the city's unemployed and needy during this winter was learned Friday when Mrs. Annette G. Will, secretary of a relief group organized several weeks ago, submitted a letter which will be sent to service clubs and other organizations doing charitable work.

Following is the letter which expresses the desires of the committee on relief:

"A few weeks ago there was a public meeting called by the Circleville Benevolent Association of representatives of all city organizations that do charitable work. At this meeting a committee was appointed to evolve a plan whereby relief work might be carried out in a more systematic way than heretofore so that supplies might reach more people to better advantage.

"The committee was composed of Mayor B. T. Hedges, Mrs. Carl Ritz, president of the Circleville Benevolent Association, Safety Director Wallace Crist, Lee Shaner, representing the Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Clark Will from the American Red Cross.

"This committee presents the following recommendations to your organization:

"1. That whatever donation you can give in the way of food, clothing, fuel or money be solicited.

"2. That such supplies be issued upon requisition either from the Safety Director or the City Cottage where a complete record will be kept of the needy families and what supplies are given them.

"3. That your organization consider our earnest plea for co-operation in this charitable work by reporting whatever help be dispensed by your association either to the Safety Director or to the City Cottage.

"The records kept at the City Cottage will be available for checking by any authorized representative of an organization which desires to send out Christmas baskets so that needless duplication may be avoided. In order to take care of the needy this winter co-operation among organizations is very necessary. For this reason we ask you to send a reply to Mayor Hedges so that we may know what resources are available."

Respectfully submitted, Annette G. Will, Secretary

GEMS STOLEN

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 28.—Unmounted gems, valued at $5,000, were taken by safecrackers from the office of Sauer & Company in a downtown business block here, police were informed today.

Mounted jewels worth $20,000 were in the safe, but apparently the robbers were frightened away before they had an opportunity to complete their task, police said.

The robbery took place between Wednesday evening and this morning.

SOCIETY TO SEE MEDICAL FILM

Dr. John R. ... will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Pickaway Medical Society, Friday evening, Dec. 5, when he will present a film illustrating "Traumatic Surgery of the Limbs," a film produced by the Department of Physiology of the University of Chicago.

10 ARE KILLED IN HURRICANE

Portions of Fiji Islands Swept; Many Sailing Vessels Destroyed During Storm.

SUVA, Fiji Islands, Nov. 28.—Ten persons were known to have perished in the severe hurricane which swept portions of the Fiji Islands, it was established today from meager reports coming over crippled lines of communications.

The captain and a passenger on the Cutter Elizabeth and William Lang, a mission teacher, and seven pupils at Buresale were killed in the storm.

The storm centered in Penang and Ovalau.

Wharves at Levuka and Nabuwah were badly battered by the fury of the hurricane.

More than a dozen small vessels were wrecked.

Banana plantations in the storm area were devastated.

First reports indicated that damage was greater than that caused by a similar hurricane last year.

AUDITOR-ELECT IN AUTO WRECK

Clifford M. White, county auditor-elect, escaped with minor injury Wednesday when his Graham-Paige sedan, which he was driving on the Columbus-pk skidded off the road and turned over.

White was enroute to Columbus and was driving at a moderate rate of speed when the car skidded and went into the ditch.

With the help of a passing motorist he was able to get the car on its wheels and drove it to the Pike Motor Sales garage.

SELECT MANAGER OF LOCAL DAIRY

E. C. Tharp, Pickerington, has been named new manager of the Pickaway Dairy Co., the board of directors to succeed Robert White. Mr. Tharp was former manager of the Pickerington Creamery, and comes to Circleville with a reputation.

E. C. Smith, Madras, a member of the board of directors has been acting manager since March.

At the county jail, Mr. Frank Davis and her assistants served roast chicken, potatoes, dressing and all the rest of the trimmings to the prisoners there.

LICENSE TAGS ARE ON SALE HERE DEC. 1

Mayor Hedges Announces Shipment of 5,000 Tags Has Arrived Here For Sale.

TO USE DEC. 21

Prices To Be Same As in Past Five Years in Ohio.

Mayor B. T. Hedges, local dispenser of automobile license tags, announced Friday that annual sale of tags will begin Monday at his offices at the Colonial Carriage Co., in W. Main-st. The annual supply of tags, manufactured by convicts in the Ohio State Penitentiary has arrived and Mayor Hedges reports 5,000 tags in the shipment.

Motorists may purchase their plates on Dec. 1 but are not permitted to use them before Dec. 21. Mayor Hedges, as well as other tag distributors appeals to the automobile-driving public that they obtain their license plates as early as possible to avoid the rush which comes during the last few days of the sales period. Sometimes, Mayor Hedges reports purchasers are forced to wait for from 30 to 45 minutes to obtain their tags during the last few days of the time allotted for the sale of tags.

No extension of time after the first of the year is anticipated by the state department. This year's plates will be gray and black.

PRICES ARE SAME

As has been customary for the last few years, cars having up to and including 24-horsepower will be assessed $4. Those with horsepower up to and including $4 will be taxed $6. This change was made in 1925 and gave Ohio the distinction of having tags priced as low as any state in the union.

Special requests for the continuation of old license numbers have been swamping the office of Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown; motor vehicle commissioner, Chalmers S. Wilson, and the different automobile clubs. Of all the requests only 15,000 can be taken care of.

Some of the prominent persons who will retain their present license tags are former governor, A. V. Donahue who will have No. 5; Mayor Thomas of Columbus, who will again possess No. 32; L. W. St. John, athletic director at Ohio State University, who will have No. H-22; Walter F. Brown, postmaster general in Pres. Hoover's cabinet, No. H-1 and Mrs. J. A. House, Cleveland, who will again receive No. 1.

Besides Mayor Hedges, distributors of tags in Pickaway-co are G. P. Hunsicker of Williamsport and A. P. Hudson of Ashville.

County Inmates Are Given Fine Holiday Feasts

Inmates of the County infirmary children's home and county jail were all given fine Thanksgiving dinners.

At the county jail, Mr. Frank Davis and her assistants served roast chicken, potatoes, dressing and all the rest of the trimmings to the prisoners there.

At the county children's home, Mrs. Geo. J. Schindler and her assistants prepared three roast turkeys for the 100 or more boys and girls there and of course all the trimmings.

At the infirmary, where 100 or more inmates are housed, a similar feast was served.

N. Y. Cops Rout 1,000 Reds

"This hurts me more than it does you," was what Police-man Murphy, of New York's "Finest," said when he banged his night stick down on the head of this disorderly Communist. However, he is shown bandaging the Red himself, after which he took him to jail. The 1,000 Communist rioters were quickly quelled by police at Penn. Station, New York City.

Fire-fighters and Friends Enjoy Big Turkey Dinner

Following a custom established several years ago the members of the Circleville Fire Department and a few invited guests enjoyed a real Thanksgiving Dinner at the Fire Department Wednesday evening.

Promptly at 5 o'clock when the cooks made the first and last call for dinner, there was no delay in getting seated around the tables arranged in the main room of the department.

Those who said they were not hungry and those who were hungry immediately found an appetite that was sufficient for them to eat to their hearts content. Roast turkey, done to a turn, sweet potatoes, delicious gravy, and plenty of it, dressing fit for a king, cranberries, scalloped corn, pickles, celery, bread, butter and coffee, and to top off the meal, a piece of pumpkin pie was on the menu.

And how it was enjoyed, even the seconds, and there was plenty of everything and right on the table so that you could help yourself.

The cooks Clint and Tom Strasser and Ray Anderson proved to all present that they knew how to put out a Thanksgiving Dinner.

GEORGE LEVAN, 63, DIES IN COLUMBUS

Funeral services will be held at the Crites funeral home in Columbus at 9 a. m. Saturday, for George Levan, age 63, of S. Paris-ave, Columbus, son of Edward and Catherine Valentine Levan, who died at University hospital, Wednesday at 3:30 a. m. of intestinal obstruction.

He was born near Stoutsville on Sept. 4, 1867, but has lived in Columbus since 1907.

His father was a farmer and his mother, Mrs. A. M. Levan, was a homemaker.

DEGREE ABOVE REGISTERED IN CITY THURSDAY

Friday's Low Mark Is Five Degrees and at Noon Mounts To 20 Mark.

SEE NO RELIEF

Eastern Part of Country Also In Grasp of Cold.

The lowest mark of the year was recorded in this city Thanksgiving Day at 7 a. m. when the official temperature dropped to one degree above zero, according to Dr. H. E. Clarke, weather observer. Mercury went up to 21 during the afternoon but Friday morning was again back down to the five degree mark. At noon the temperature had leaped back up to 20 and was reported by Dr. Clarke to be gradually rising.

By International News Service: Bringing additional deaths, the sub-zero cold wave continued to hold Ohio in its grip today as many sections of the state reported that all-time records for November had been shattered.

No immediate relief from the bitter cold was predicted by meteorologists, who reported that a furious snow storm is raging into the Middle Western states from the Alberta, Canada section. The storm is expected to reach the area tomorrow or Sunday.

15 REPORTED DEAD—More than 15 deaths from exposure were reported throughout the section and the toll was rapidly mounting.

Ed Wiffled, 50, homeless, was found dead on a street at Newburg by police yesterday afternoon. He had been frozen to death, authorities said.

An unidentified man was found frozen to death on a country road about a half mile south of Springfield. He apparently was making his way in or out of the city, was caught in a snowstorm and died from exposure.

The first coasting fatality of the year in Ohio was reported at Cincinnati with the death of Robert Mueller, 12. The boy was crushed to death when his sled crashed into an automobile.

Frederick Flood, 12, Lancaster, was possibly fatally injured when his sled was hit by an auto near his home at Lancaster.

BOSTON, Nov. 28.—New England held in an icy grip today following a miniature Thanksgiving Day late afternoon blizzard, the toll of dead in automobile accidents over the holiday had reached eleven.

Five deaths were directly attributed to the storm which swept out of the northwest, covering the ground with snow and the streets with icy glaze.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The east's wintry weather was to continue today, the weather bureau predicting a fair but cold day. A few snow flakes fell yesterday. Some parts of Maryland reported temperatures of six degrees above zero.

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION IS AGAIN IN HIBERNATION

BY GEORGE R. HOLMES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—President Hoover's law enforcement commission, whose findings on prohibition are eagerly awaited by wets and dries alike, recovered somewhat Monday after a 10-day recess in which the 11 members sought to reconcile their conflicting views on Volsteadism.

If any progress was made during the 10 days of contemplation and reflection it was not visible to observers, nor was it indicated by the guarded comment of the members.

The commission was split then, and it was still split today, with the re-assembly of Congress only a week away and President Hoover busily engaged in drafting his annual message. Mr. Hoover had hoped to have the guiding influence of a report from the commission before writing the prohibition section of his message, but apparently this is not to be.

GENERAL REPORT

Racketeering and lawlessness in general will come in for drastic treatment, but on the moot question of what is to be done about prohibition Mr. Hoover probably will prefer to await the report—or reports—of the Wickersham commission. It or they, may be expected around Jan. 1, it is said.

All indications continue to point to more than one report from the commission on prohibition. Several of the members are known to favor real modification of the Volstead act, several are known to be violently opposed to any such recommendation. Several others are said to be uncertain as to whether it lies within the province of the commission to recommend changes in any laws. These latter advance the theory that the commission was not appointed for the extra-legislative duty of determining upon the wisdom or unwisdom of specific laws, but only to study and recommend how existing laws can better be enforced. In any event, the commission went back to work today as a body to tackle the job again.

BAN YES OR NO

One proposal, compromising in nature, has been considerably discussed within the commission. Stripped of non-essentials, it is simply that the commission avoid at this time any direct commitment as to whether prohibition can or cannot be enforced, or whether the Volstead act is a practicable piece of legislation.

Instead of passing yes-or-no judgment on the matter, the commission could simply set forth that prohibition is deserving of further trial—say five years, for example—under the new enforcement set-up of the department of justice, with the suggestion that if at the end of such a trial period conditions are not improved then Congress and the country should give serious thought to modification.

The supporters of this idea point out that President Hoover could favorably recommend such a report to Congress. He himself has said that prohibition "is a noble experiment" and one "that must be worked out constructively."

Moreover, such a report from the Wickersham commission probably would appease the dries, who are already publicly talking of third party in 1932 if both parties flirt with modification in platform or candidates. The wets might rumble and charge the commission with "straddling" and ducking the issue, but at the same time there would be something in the nature of promise of future relief at the end of a definite trial period. Most wets do not believe prohibition can be enforced anyway, whether tried for five years or 50, and might be persuaded to support such a report from the commission.

EFFECT ELECTION

Incidentally, such a trial period as suggested would carry over the presidential election in 1932, which would be pleasing to a large number of wavering statesmen in Senate and House.

If there is to be such a thing as a unanimous report from the commission—and many believe it to be impossible—it probably will be based upon some such compromise as outlined above. No report positive or negative as to modification, can command united endorsement from the commission at this time, according to all indications.

Civilization improves homes. A husband can't be hit with a can opener as hard as with a rolling pin.

STUDY SHOWS FICTION LEADS BOOKS OFFERED IN LIBRARIES

A recent study of the book reading habits of Scranton, Pa., showed that in 1929 approximately 76 per cent of the books read were fiction, about 13 percent were in the arts and sciences, 4 percent in history and biography, and 4 percent in "literature," which included poetry, drama, and the classics, according to borrowing statistics of Scranton public library. The study was made by Arthur L. Snover, research student at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania, under the auspices of the Book Publishers Research Institute. It was pointed out by the Book

Publishers Research Institute that whereas the figures available in Scranton may be representative of the reading in a city like Scranton, statistics show that other cities of similar population buy more books. Scranton, which has a population of 153,000, according to the report devoted $36,000 to its library in 1929, or about 23 cents per capita. The library and its branches had book issues totaling 208,843 during that year. Mr. Snover's study shows that during 1930, fiction fell two and one-half percent under 1929 figures, while arts and science showed an increase of one percent, history and biography a one percent increase, and "literature" an increase of one-half of one percent. In explanation of these figures, Mr. Snover comments that before these encouraging educational trends are taken too seriously, the greatly increased activity of the rental libraries, dealing primarily in fiction, must be considered. Although there are no circulation statistics from the rental libraries, he suggests the decrease of two and one-half percent in the circulation of fiction shown in the public library may be more than balanced by the increase in circulation of fiction in the circulating libraries.

Taking the rental libraries into consideration, Mr. Snover concludes that the reading of all books for 1930 will show a substantial increase over the number of books borrowed from the public and rental libraries in 1929.

CHOICES VARY
The study shows that fiction was most popular in the summer and that while fiction led other forms of reading throughout the whole year, it was from September until April that non-fiction enjoyed its greatest popularity.

January was the high month for all reading done for 1929. The lowest month was July, when the circulation was seventy-three percent of the January circulation, a drop which is accounted for by summer recreational activities.

Although women showed a greater interest in reading at all seasons of the year than men, the interest of men rose in the winter when it almost equaled that of the women, the report states. The 1929 registration figures showed that the men rose from a low of 37 percent of registration in the middle of June to about fifty percent in the last of December.

The study shows that in 1929 the feminine readers were the fiction enthusiasts and that a larger proportion of the non-fiction reading was done by men than by women. The first eight months of 1930 showed no such relationship, for during this period there were indications that men were reading more fiction and that women were venturing to a greater extent into the non-fiction field.

The greatest interest in reading by children was in the autumn, according to registration statistics for 1929. It was only during this season that the interest of the children exceeded that of adults. Registration figures for the first eight months of 1930 showed a uniform increase in the interest of reading by children over the same period in 1929.

Favored by Hoover For Labor Post

William N. Doak, of Virginia, editor of "Railroad Trainmen," it is said is favored by President Herbert Hoover as Secretary of Labor to succeed Senator-elect James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Doak was originally slated for the Hoover Cabinet in 1928, but Mr. Davis was reappointed.

PICKAWAY-TWP SCHOOL NOTES

Our attendance last week was 97 per cent. It has been running about 95 per cent for the past several weeks.

Special numbers for our assembly program Monday morning were furnished by the 2nd and 11th grades and by Mr. Todhunter. Mr. Todhunter played a trumpet solo, Miss Radcliffe at the piano. The 2nd grade gave us some action songs and drills. The 11th grade furnished two songs; also readings by Marvina Riffe and Evangela McKenzie and a little drama by Nellie Alexander, Ross Dodd, and Floyd Brundage.

Our first basket ball games were with Darby here Tuesday night. We won each game by a six point margin, the girls' score 22 to 16 and the boys' score 21 to 15. George B. Stoker was the referee. The Darby teams are playing well, and it kept our teams going at full speed to keep ahead of them. The score of the boys' game was tied at the half.

Our teams take their first trip when we go to Jackson, Friday of next week. Jackson has lots of room for spectators, and we hope all of our supporters will accompany us.

Our elementary school gave a Thanksgiving program Wednesday afternoon in which each grade participated.

We have much to be thankful for. Let's give thanks and be glad we can.

Men may not make a path to your door if you invent a better mouse trap, but they will if you invent a better sucker trap.

RAPS THOMPSON

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—Issuing a bitter attack on Mayor William Hale Thompson, Charles V. Barrett, board of review member, today had announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Mayor in the February primary election.

Barrett in his statement accompanying his announcement blamed Mayor Thompson for Chicago's present unfavorable reputation and for high taxes and criticized him for "a police department become demoralized through conspiracy between certain commanding officers and racketeers, gunmen and desperadoes."

CAIRO—Egyptian parliamentary elections have been set for late this February or early March, according to reliable information. As the last parliament was summarily dissolved, the country at present is being ruled under a practical dictatorship headed by Premier Sidkey.

Universal

NORTH Americans, South Americans and Central Americans, whenever and wherever they get together, like to tell each other they are brothers under the skin, having a community of interests and struggling with the same eternal problems. This is considered good diplomacy and better dollar-diplomacy, but there is more truth in it than is commonly supposed by the high-hatted gentlemen with their tongues in their cheeks.

Consider the platform of Brazil's new government:

Financial reform.

Simplification of administrative processes and war on political parasitism.

Reduction of administrative expenses.

Simplification of legal procedure.

Honest elections.

Advancement of public instruction.

Constitutional reforms relative to judicial and electoral procedure.

Reformation of the powers and responsibilities of the legislative and executive branches.

Where have the people of the United States heard these eight planks enunciated before? They sound strangely like the eight planks in the platform now before virtually every community in the United States: Sound money, less gorging at the public trough, honest elections, speedy justice, honest taxes, speedy justice, honest elections, return to the three R's take politics out of the courts, fewer laws.

Utopian University

IN the "University of Utopia" as conceived by the young president of the University of Chicago, everything that makes life miserable for undergraduates today would be abolished, leaving the student to romance his or her way through college, partaking only of such tidbits of literature, science and philosophy that strike the fancy.

Instead of qualifying for entrance and maintaining a standard of academic excellence high enough to remain in school the traditional four years, the student would enter at will but could not depart from the cloistered halls of knowledge until found educated by the faculty. Worthiness would be the only entrance requirement.

There are two weaknesses in the plan. The average college of university student must be driven. He attends classes because of a system of checks and double-checks. Remove this element of necessity and the student's days in school would be doubled.

And who has a yardstick that he can apply to learning in the aggregate? Colleges and universities today are graduating thousands of men and women who are uneducated by all the standards of modern life. But these shortcomings notwithstanding, the University of Utopia probably would be as efficient as custom-ridden present-day universities.

Evils of Parole

LET parole stand but improve the parole system is the consensus of public opinion and the gist of a number of reports made by parole reform commissions. Parole machinery at times seems to work so badly as to require overhauling or scrapping.

Disputes at the parole and reprieve of notorious criminals has put the whole principle of extra leniency at issue in a number of states. If there were no alternative to the rubber stamp method of parole but to abolish the parole, it would be best to adopt that remedy, but if it is possible to administer parole discriminately and thoroughly this type of indulgence to deserving prisoners, which has a reformative value, should not be discarded.

Where many parole boards fail is in the perfunctory manner in which they perform their important duties. They act, in the main, simply as agencies for the endorsement of minimum sentences, without giving the study of the merits or demerits of individual cases which intelligent operation of a parole law demands.

What can be answered by the statement that an underfinanced parole board is the cause of its failure?

RIGHT NEIGHBORLY

GIRL UNAFRAID BY GLADYS JOHNSON

ARDETH CARROLL is just a shopgirl, leading a very simple life, but her ideals are high. She looks beyond the drab existence marriage to Neil Burke would mean. Seeing handsome Ken Gleason with Cecile Parker, society belle, Ardeth's heart leaps. When Cecile's sister, Jeanette, opens a specialty shop, she asks Ardeth to take charge. Ardeth meets Ken at the shop. Shortly after, knowing Jeanette has left for the day, Ken calls, feigning he had planned to drive Jeanette home. He asks Ardeth to go instead.

CHAPTER VII.
FELL STREET—the gaunt old-fashioned houses looking more forbidding than ever in a grey twilight. Lights of the Harrison flat gleaming through cracked blinds.

Ken stopped the car before the shadowy entrance. His hand took her own gloved one and held it in goodby.

His lips smiled but the blue eyes were somehow wistful.

"Does it have to be good night, so soon, Moth?"

Inside the dark hallway Ardeth stood tense, straining to the sound of Ken's car starting up the street.

There—he was at the corner . . . he was turning the corner . . . he was gone.

Hot despair raged in the girl's heart. Gone—the man that brought comfort to the world where he belonged. That world which held girls like Cecile Parker, who could give jolly little dinners—supper parties. If she, Ardeth, had such a background . . . if she could have asked Ken to come up stairs, assured of her own thoughts with an angry little laugh. Only too vividly she was remembering a painful night three years ago.

A shy young fellow she had known at school had called on her. That evening! Even now she could go red at the humiliating memory.

The shadowy living room under the eaves of the chamber. Tom, dressed on the couch, coat and shoes off, crumpling a daily greeting behind his newspaper. Her fingers through the room on dusty pretense. The smothered sobs and painfully audible comments of Tom and Paul in the adjoining room.

The shocked embarrassment which had kept the unfortunate young man from moving a breath for hours.

Paul sat on the couch at night and was not until Aunt Annie's midnight summons at nine thirty had called him to the kitchen.

Ken Gleason to face such a moment! Ardeth's heart was heavy as she went up the stairs. As with it was all over now, embarrassment had made her world with her and good good. He was smiling and good good. He was smiling and good good.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him. She had been so sure of him.

completely baffled her cousin.

"I'm going out with King George, Bet," she teased, "but we don't want to know!"

"Oh, it was easy to laugh these days! Ken's laughing, blue eyes—his white smile always in her mind."

She awoke to a sense of joyous expectancy. Sunday morning! The far sound of church bells ringing over the city! A glorious day! A day made to order! The faded wooden houses of Fell Street were bathed in early sunshine when she walked up the street to meet Ken.

She would not let him come to the house. There was always the chance of a jealous scene with Nell.

He was waiting at the corner, slouched down in the front seat of the blue car which was already so thrillingly familiar.

She saw his face light up at the sight of her. They were on their way, plunging down the hill through the sunshine.

And the girl found herself listening with painful intensity, her heart turning to lead.

Ken was saying, "I couldn't bring myself to tell you before—Jeanette phoned last night, a house party at Burlingame she'd forgotten. On top of Tom being called out of town, it looked as though a jinks were working for us. But I thought—I hoped—I tore his eyes from the street to find them gleaming on her face: 'Look here, why can't we go on through with the thing by ourself. Ah, please—Moth!"

Across the bay from San Francisco the Alameda coastline stretches itself to the south in a long, straight line. An early morning country brooding under eternal silence. The only habitations are tiny little wooden shacks stuck on stilts in the mud used for duck shooting parties or small wooden huts anchored on the edges of the innumerable sloughs which cut the flats into a gray picture puzzle.

Half hidden in the saw-grass on the edge of one such slough was the houseboat which Ken and Tom Corbett called their "duck shack."

Most of the time it lay bleaching alone in the sunny stillness—so deserted that gulls and cots and even the wild ducks had come to regard it as part of the landscape.

But today the bird life had fled in panic. The mud hens had waded away in scandalized agitation and seagulls had a knowing air as they circled its roof. The warped little ark had been invaded by a tall laughing fellow and a slim girl in a sport dress.

A golden day on the marshes. A day underlaid with a thrilling sense of drama.

"Glad you came, Moth!"

"Must have a heavy date?" she said, smiling, on Saturday night, her pale green eyes going across the room to the other girl.

Wrapped in a cotton crepe kimono, faded to shell pink by numerous tans, Ardeth sat fidgeting with her hair. She had just shampooed her hair and quite dry, it hung about her head in a shock of dark gold.

Not viewed these preparations with suspicion.

Thanksgiving
Dr. Copeland's Message

Give Thanks Today for Health and a Vigorous Body.
Urges Dr. Copeland, for They Are Blessings Worth Far More to You Than Wealth.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THIS is Thanksgiving Day. No matter what trials beset us on other days, we should set them aside today. It is our bounden duty to give thanks to Almighty God for the blessings He has bestowed upon us.

Let us not think about present day troubles so far as they affect us. Rather let us puzzle ourselves today over what we can do to help others. You may be on part-time employment. Perhaps you have no work at all. Perhaps any and all these things you have my sympathy.

But, my friend, if you have health, sound teeth and vigorous body, you can be happy in spite of your financial distress. The possession of health is more important than the dividend or the pay envelope.

We must be at the bottom of the business depression. Certainly it won't be long before the wheels are spinning and this critical time shall be no more than a memory. The spirit of optimism should be in our hearts.

For as he thinketh in his heart so is he. Solomon said: Let us think happiness, prosperity, the common welfare, and good will to men. When our thoughts are right, we are on the way to help the material world to better standards. A better understanding of our fellow men. Then we will be better men and women better boys and girls.

Let us make Thanksgiving Day a day of praise for what we have and what we hope for. Let us not lament over what we have not, nor over what might have been. God's will has heaven still!

Exclusive of being delightful entertainment, "Love in the Rough" gives us a new romantic team in Robert Montgomery, who is featured, and Dorothy Jordan.

The new film, a picturization of the stage play, "Spring Fever," opened last night at the Cliftona Theatre, serving as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's introduction to the motion picture public of the two popular young players as romancers.

There is every reason to believe Montgomery and Miss Jordan will be together often again, the picture establishing the wisdom of the initial venture.

A vivid romance of bold adventure in the bad lands is told in "Rogue of the Rio Grande," the exciting talkie featuring Myrna Loy, Raymond Hatton and Josselyn Bove now being presented at the Met Theatre. It is a warm-blooded account of bandits and beauties, excellently presented, and mixing robust humor, lilting melodies and tingling drama.

Jose Bohr, who has appeared in a number of Spanish versions of feature length productions, exacts the title role in "Rogue of the Rio Grande." Opposite him is the charming Myrna Loy, who sings a few songs effectively, and demonstrates the dancing ability which gave her her start in pictures and has made her one of the most popular young players in Hollywood.

Herbert Brennon, daring adventurer of the films, has tossed precedent to the winds again and delivered another dramatic creation to thrill and startle the world's playgoers.

Brennon's new achievement is Radio Pictures' "The Case of Sgt. Grischka," an almost literal translation in to film of Arnold Zweig's devastating novel of war. It will be presented for the first time here at the Grand Theatre.

The members of the Romona Grange of Pickaway county held an all day meeting at Saltcreek school building last Saturday. Lunch was served and a fine program was given. There was a large attendance in spite of the rain.

Miss Schaal, the fifth and sixth grade teacher has a fine display room this week made by her pupils. The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades have a splendid exhibition ready for the P. T. A. meeting Wednesday night. The men have charge of arrangements for a program which promises to be very interesting. All members are urged to come and bring new members.

The pupils of the grange plan to have a short Thanksgiving program in the afternoon of Wednesday, Nov. 26. They have invited their parents and friends. Each teacher is cooperating with Mrs. Smith the music teacher, to make the program interesting and enjoyable.

Remember our first basketball game November twenty-first, when we play Muhlenberg at Turlington. Let's all go and help root for old Saltcreek.

Mr. McCollier, the seventh and eighth grade teacher, has been receiving contributions this week.

hearts on Thanksgiving Day. If you are unemployed spend the period of forced idleness in building up your health, then these dark days may prove a blessing. If you are forced to eat the simplest, the plainest foods that won't hurt you, it is good for you to do this. It would be better if you did it when money is flush.

In this world there are thousands, millions, of blind, deaf, rheumatic, bed-ridden, insane and feeble-minded persons. You are not blind or otherwise helpless. You have a good brain and a clear mind. Be thankful today for these blessings, worth far more to you than the wealth of Rockefeller.

This should be a day when each of us tries to find somebody worse off than we are. If we do something for such our own skies will be clear and happiness will sing in our hearts.

Let us make Thanksgiving Day a day of praise for what we have and what we hope for. Let us not lament over what we have not, nor over what might have been. God's will has heaven still!

Charles Cromley, Volney Prushing, Grover Cline and Will Hall were invited to a rabbit-supper given by the Protective Association at Jackson-twp Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Winifred Morrison is to entertain the Sunday School class at her home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Kauber were business visitors in Columbus Tuesday evening.

Luther Peer has moved his family from their Long-st property on a small farm north of Ashville.

Arthur Sampl and family moved last week to the country.

Mrs. Lena Reid spent a few days last week with Mrs. Lou Vause.

The local W.C.T.U. held a very interesting meeting at the U. B. church Thursday afternoon. After the business was disposed of their guest the county president, Mrs. Lucy Price of Circleville gave a report of the State Convention which was held at Youngstown, O., which was an interesting one.

Mrs. Blanche Hoover was in Ashville Friday. She is now living at Mt. Sterling but comes to her home town to visit quite often.

All the business men and others who are interested in the welfare of Ashville met Thursday evening in the K. P. Hall to discuss many things for the betterment of Ashville, namely; to bring outsiders in for trading at the stores and urging for the picture show to be opened again.

The high school is to begin their basketball season.

The Parent-Teacher association held their regular meeting at the school building Thursday evening. Judge Brown gave a splendid address and was greatly enjoyed by the good crowd that attended.

IMPORTATION OF RUSSIAN GOODS IS MORE DIFFICULT

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Importation of Russian goods under new treasury regulations prepared to prohibit the entry of convict-labor products into the United States will be no more difficult than under past practices, high officials asserted today.

While the burden of the proof is shifted to the importer to prove merchandise the product of free labor under cases where the customs bureau was barred from the country articles made in specific localities of foreign countries, it was contended that should the importer go into the courts the burden of the proof then would revert to the treasury to uphold its contention as to the illegality of the imports.

So far the treasury has not been able to prove that Russian goods brought here have been produced by convicts. An effort was made to exclude lumber and pulp wood under this section of the tariff act, but in the absence of proof it was necessary to admit these products.

Officials contended the tariff act of 1930 directed the treasury to prepare regulations to bar convict labor, and that the present setup has not been directed at Russia or any other country. The regulations do, however, have a particular bearing on the Russian trade because convict labor is used more widely in certain sections of that country.

Charges put before the treasury allege the use of convict labor in the Archangel section of Russia. Under the regulations if the customs commissioner should have reasonable ground to believe this is a fact he could issue a finding, prohibiting imports from that district, unless the importer established by a preponderance of evidence the merchandise was not produced by convicts.

In cases of this kind all imports must be made under surety bond equal to the value of the merchandise offered for import, or these imports may be left in customs custody until the commissioner decides as to their admissibility. The treasury will require a prompt decision.

Where there is a question as to production, importers must furnish a certificate of origin, executed by the foreign seller or manufacturer, that they are the products of free labor. In the absence of evidence to the contrary a certificate will be accepted as information upon which imports may enter the country.

A consignee whose imports have been entered under bond is required to make every reasonable effort to determine the source of the merchandise and the conditions of production.

The final proof of Monamee's genius will come when he stutters with excitement while broadcasting a checker game.

HUNT ESCAPED LIMA PRISONERS

LIMA, O., Nov. 28.—No trace of the three prisoners who sawed their way to freedom from the state hospital for the criminally insane here had been found today, as guards and sheriff's deputies searched the country-side for the trio.

The three men escaped from the institution yesterday afternoon when they sawed the bars from their cell window and slid to the ground on improvised ropes of bed clothing and wearing apparel.

Guards discovered the break a short time later.

Superintendent W. H. Vorbau said the trio were not dangerous. They were confined to a section for less serious mental cases.

The escaped prisoners were Oscar Wynn, 28, Montgomery-co; Wilbur Ladd, 25, Lucas-co; and Marvin Hart, 23, Hamilton-co.

PERRY-TWP SCHOOL

The whole school assembled in the auditorium last Friday morning for chapel exercises. Russell McDill, seventh and eighth grade teacher, favored us with a vocal number which was very much appreciated, as we always love to hear Mr. McDill sing. Rev. Clarence Swearingen, pastor of the Methodist Church at Williamsport gave a most interesting talk along educational lines stressing three things living for others, living with others, and living through others. Rev. Swearingen was introduced by Mr. McDill, who had charge of chapel exercises.

Perry-twp boys and girls journeyed to Scioto-twp last Friday night to play basketball. The teams was carried over to Scioto by school bus, Prof. Ray Kitchen, acting as chauffeur.

The girls scored 43 to 23 in favor of Scioto, Opal Kirk scored highest for Perry, and played a good game.

Boys scored 26 to 18 in favor of Perry. Thacker was the shining star for Perry.

The P. T. A. meeting was well attended last Thursday night. The teachers of the school gave a pantomime, "Ghosts Walked". Prof. Creighton read in a very distinct tone while other members of the faculty appeared in the different representations in humorous costumes and to all of us they called up pictures of Ghosts. Altogether everybody who attended had a grand time.

FOLLOW YOUR NOSE

Mrs. Hallie Hoskins has charge of the lunch room and each day noon lunch is served in the basement for the small sum of 10 ct. The other day a stranger came in to the school building, and looked around as if wondering where to go or what to do, presently he sniffed the air, and his look changed to a pleasant smile, he immediately, proceeded in the direction from which the pleasant odor came. As he followed down the steps, the grin on his face broadened, and again he sniffed the air. When he reached the foot of the stairs, he espied an open door, walking to the entrance, and peering inside, was delighted, he saw several green tables which were arranged tastefully.

It was nearly lunch time and he was given an invitation to remain by Mrs. Hoskins and her daughter, who assists her mother, of course he would! Hadn't he been led there by the odor of the food? Well, when he departed I presume his belt was tighter and I heard him say to himself, as he descended the stairs, "It pays to follow your nose."

Athletic Club Loses Opener To Buffalo Five

BUFFALO 'PRO' OUTFIT HOLDS NARROW EDGE

Failure of Locals to Make Percentage of Shots Causes Defeat in Game.

SCORE IS 25 TO 20

Many Different Combinations Used by C. A. C. Coach.

Clearly showing the need of practice at hitting the net from scrimmage the Circleville Athletic Club went down to defeat in its opening contest Thanksgiving night with rough, tough and clever Buffalo Lincolns, Bisons or whatever you want to call them on the long end of a 25-20 count.

The defeat was not a disgusting one for the club made a better showing than was expected, but when one looks back over the contest and remembers the number of seemingly easy shots the clubmen failed to sink it is with regret that a defeat is written instead of a victory. Time after time a pot shot would be offered the local tossers but the ball would either roll round the hoop then drop off, or would hit the rim or do anything but go where it belonged.

BISONS TAKE LEAD
The Buffalo team, playing as a pro outfit, took a commanding lead of 9-2 at the end of the first period, the only club points coming on foul tosses by Steele and Parks.

In the second period the going was better with the club scoring four points to two for the invaders. A basket by Steele and another by Courtwright accounted for the club scores. White did most of the heavy work for the pros when he counted three goals in the first half. At the beginning of the second period Courtwright replaced Pickens and Barnes took Parks' place at center. During the second period Wallace went in for Barnes and H. White for Steele.

Merriman, Paris, Pickens, Barnes and White started the third period for the club with Gordon replacing Parks and Steele substituting for White during the period. The club gained on the Bisons in the third period but when Miller, right guard broke loose for four goals the margin was again widened.

The club made a desperate effort to overtake the Bisons in the closing minutes, when Merriman scored a free toss and Dud Courtwright connected for three field goals in rapid-fire order but the edge was too much and a defeat was scored.

Bob Shea, Columbus, refereed the game.

Petrolle Floors McLarnin in Epic Tilt

While Billy Petrolle waits in his corner, Referee Patsy Haley is leaning over to shout the count into the ear of the dazed Jimmy McLarnin. The upset took place in the fourth round of the frantic bout at the Garden, New York. The Vancouver boy arose only to be knocked down again. For a second time he arose at the count of nine, and displaying a world of courage, managed to last the fight. Petrolle was awarded the decision.

RALLY FAILS FOR CLOUDS 5

Team Looks Fairly Good in Defeat at Hands of Neat Darbyville Quintet.

A final period rally falling short by only two points, the Flying Cloud basketball team went down to defeat Thursday evening at C. A. C. at the hands of a versatile Darbyville team. The score was 24-22.

Trailing 20-10 at the half, the Clouds began to make baskets in good style in the second part of the game and when the final whistle sounded only two points separated the teams. Darbyville was held to two field goals during the second half of the encounter while the Clouds, clicking in good style, scored 6. The 10 point margin at the halftime was just a little too much.

It was Art Walker at a forward who spelled defeat for the Clouds. He scored four field goals in the first half and helped give his team a commanding lead. Fullen at center scored three buckets for the winners.

Ernie Enoch and Joe Glitt scored six points each for the losers while Jaggy Davis, in only a part of the game, scored five counters. McGlone of Ashville refereed.

Next Thursday the Clouds will play the fast Williamsport team in a preliminary to the Club game.

SAVOLDI COUNTS WINNING SCORE

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—"Jumping Joe" Savoldi's worth on the professional gridiron was not disputed today after the former Notre Dame terror yesterday scored the lone touchdown in the Chicago Bears' 6 to 0 victory over the Cardinals of Chicago.

It was a one-yard bust through the line in the second period that brought the only score of the day. Prior to this Savoldi had contributed an 18-yard gain on a lateral pass play. Surrounded by Cardinal players when he took the ball, the former Irish fullback crashed right through them.

Salvodi's excellent blocking was a big factor in Grange's consistent gains.

"Astral Bodies"
Astral body is a term loosely used in modern literature to cover every kind of fantastical or spiritual appearance of the human form. More specific definitions are given by spiritualists and by Hindu philosophers.

Relief from Curse of Constipation

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing a dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 at 25c at the nearest Rexall Store. Hamilton & Ryan—Adv.

COLUMBUSITES DEFEATS EMORY

The Shop Baker second team of Columbus had no trouble at all defeating the Emory club here Thursday evening in an early preliminary to the C. A. C-Buffalo contest. The score was 34-7.

The local team of former high school players didn't have a chance with the fast passing Columbus outfit. Heeter, Clark, Wilson, Zeimer, Dumm, Sims, Hutchinson and Liston played with the local outfit.

THE BIG HOUSE

By JACK LAIT
Published by arrangement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

CHAPTER XXII
A score of men were at the barred windows seeking a chance to enter the first. The machine guns kept on peppering the cellhouse. There were several badly wounded on the floor, and although they raised their voices beseechingly, they were ignored. This was no time to tend the wounded. Several others lay sprawled out, and no longer moved.

Morgan could see the face of Wallace. The muscles of his jaws were working spasmodically and his eyes were burning with fever, as he held his hands aloft.

Joe and Mike, who had gone to prepare the electric chair, returned. "No juice—the dynamo's dead," said Joe. "They've cut the cables."

"Hell," stormed Butch. "Then—'said your prayers, Wallace?"

"I don't know any prayers," returned Wallace, summoning his last roll of bravado. "Go ahead and shoot—the juice will be on for you!"

Butch answered threefold. There were three deafening shots. A groan Butch was reloading.

"Throw the skunk out in the yard," said the Killer.

While they were dragging Wallace's lifeless body across the floor, Morgan half arose and made his way cautiously along the tier until he came to the steps leading to the dangerous floor.

Olson had left his post and was helping to pile mattresses against the windows. Others were busy throwing bedding down from the upper tiers. Morgan darted through the dungeon door. The lights were all out here, and only a thin shaft from the open rent illumined the landing. Half way down the steps Morgan spied Kent, who began to creep further down when he saw his enemy. As Morgan advanced Kent retreated on his unsteady legs. The light above threw a fantastic shadow across the desanguinated, haggard face of Kent.

Morgan was three steps above the younger man. At that instant there was a L-rude bang and the prison rocked. Morgan braced himself on the other side to keep afoot. When he looked around again he saw Kent running up the steps and out the door.

Another cessation in the firing. Morgan could hear Butch.

"Keep that wire flag waving! New open that door—throw him out!"

They were tossed. The body of Wallace lay in the ward. The prison rocked with new vigor. Morgan knew the answer of the ward. He knew, too, that the tier of guards who were huddled at the bottom of the steps were sentenced to go out by one—go as Wallace had gone, and down by Butch to whom murder was a thrill.

Morgan knew that he must not quickly. Olson had returned to his post. He was standing with his back to the open door. He had no fear that the guards would attempt to get out, as it would mean only a speedy end to their lives. Morgan crept softly up the steps. When he reached the top one, he caught Olson between the arm-pits and swung him aside the door.

"You stinking donkey-headed scoundrel," gasped Olson, as he was hurled by Morgan. Morgan strong-armed Olson with an elbow hook around his throat, and wrenched the gun loose with the other hand.

He cracked Olson on the skull with the butt, and then down the steps. Then he opened the door and looked out. The sky was dark and some distance away through the smoke and haze of the night he saw the dark and lock. He pocketed the key and started to run up the steps to the second tier when he saw a figure crawling toward him.

It was Zop Riker, the old guard from the Warden's office, who had been felled by a blow from Butch when the mutineers had entered the cellhouse. Morgan bent over him.

"Hurt bad, Pop?" he asked.

"No, but I can't walk—I'm too weak," was the feeble reply.

Morgan knew that to leave him there would mean certain death when Butch found that the other guard were safely locked in the dungeon. So he caught him beneath the arm and dragged him up the stairs to the second tier. Then he lifted the old fellow in his arms and laid him on a bunk in the first cell.

As he turned to go out he saw through the smoke a figure crouched in the back of the cell. He looked more closely and saw that it was Kent.

When Kent saw him approach he stared at him in frozen terror, and flattened instinctively against the wall. He attempted a scream—but accomplished only a dry, noiseless wheeze. Morgan turned his back on him. He stood a moment in the doorway of the cell and looked out over the corridor below, where Butchmen were fighting, their losing battle. He knew that when the gang real ized there was no chance in their desperate last stand, they would find him out. A kill him. There would be no time for arguments and explanations then. Mo decided to sell his life for what it was worth. He threw open the chamber of the pistol which he had taken from Kent and saw that there were but three loaded shells in it.

He extracted the spent ones, reached into his pocket and drew out three others. As he slid them into the chamber, Kent, who had been watching him in mad horror, believing the gun was being loaded to shoot him, slumped to the floor, uttering strange, half-articulate animal yelps.

Morgan turned and looked down at him. Kent raised his face to supplication.

"Don't kill me!" he spluttered. "For God's sake, stop! I swear I didn't want to shoot! They forced me! They told me they'd let me go—free—if I did. I couldn't stand it here—I was going crazy! I didn't mean to see them out! Don't kill Butch. I told you that knife on you—I didn't!"

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX

Strikingly beautiful, fleet and smart—a masterpiece of Fisher styling

In the entire field of modern coachcraft no symbol has come to mean more to the buyer of a motor car than Body by Fisher. And never has Fisher's superiority been more strikingly exemplified than in the beautiful new bodies of the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six!

Working with the added advantage of a lengthened wheelbase, Fisher designers have been able to achieve in the new Chevrolet a degree of smartness, comfort and impressiveness hitherto considered exclusive to cars far higher in price.

And out, scores of refinements stamp it as a masterpiece of modern coachcraft. Radiator, headlamps and tie-bar are artistically grouped to create an unusually attractive ensemble. Mouldings creep back in a graceful, unbroken line to blend with the smart new body contours. And new colors lend a new individuality. Interiors, too, are exceptional in every way. The new mohair and broadcloth upholstery is tailored with exceptional smartness. Seats are wider and deeper and more luxuriously cushioned. A deeper windshield and wider windows give better vision for both driver and passengers. And beautiful new hardware, of modern design, lends a final note of charm.

Many mechanical improvements have also been provided in the chassis of this Bigger and Better Six. Among these are a stronger frame; easier steering; a more durable clutch; a smoother transmission; and engine refinements which make the new Chevrolet a car you will be happy to drive—as well as proud to own.

The Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six is now on display in our showrooms. See it. Drive it! Learn for yourself that it is the Great American Value!

SCALDED TRAINMEN SAVE PASSENGERS

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28.—An engineer and a fireman on a Baltimore & Ohio passenger train were reported to be in a critical condition in a local hospital today after successfully stopping their train after both had been severely scalded. The two men collapsed following the heroic act.

The injured men were Charles A. Dreese, 55, engineer, and R. E. Cashdollar, fireman. They were scalded by live steam that poured into the engine cab.

The accident was believed to have been caused by the breaking of a flue, which let water into the white-hot firebox. When the doors of the firebox were opened, the live steam burst out, filling the cab and driving both men out.

Dreese, realizing that the lives of the passengers were at stake, crawled back to the throttle and brought the speeding train to a halt.

CONGRESSMAN'S SON INJURED

GALLIPOLIS, O., Nov. 28.—John Switzer, son of former congressman Robert M. Switzer, was reported in a serious condition here today as the result of injuries sustained when the trunk of a burning dead tree fell on him. He suffered a broken shoulder, and a broken leg.

The accident occurred here yesterday while Switzer was watching a football game between Gallipolis and Ft. Pleasant high schools.

PASTORS' MEETING PROGRAM WILL BE OF VALUE TO ALL

Centering about the theme, "The Technique of an Efficient Minister," the program of addresses and discussions arranged for the twelfth annual Ohio Pastors' Convention, to be held in Columbus Jan. 19-22, will have great practical value for every clergyman participating. Rev. Franklin McElfresh, representative of the local ministerial association on the convention program committee, stated today.

He had just returned from a meeting of the program committee in Columbus, at which final program arrangements were made.

The Pastors' Convention is held annually under the management of the Ohio Council of Churches and is accompanied by similar interdenominational gatherings of laymen and church women. The Laymen's Convention will be held Jan. 21 and 22 and the Women's Conference Jan. 20-22.

Speakers announced for the pastors' sessions include:

Dr. Frederick B. Fisher, Ann Arbor, Mich., former Methodist Episcopal bishop; Dr. Joseph Fort Newton, Episcopal clergyman, Philadelphia; Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of Presbyterian Seminary, Chicago; Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Brooklyn, Congregational minister, famous radio preacher; Dr. Samuel McCrea Cavert, New York, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. G. Bromley Oxman, president DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind.; Former Governor William E. Sweet, of Colorado; Dr. Merton S. Rice, Detroit, minister of the largest Methodist congregation in America; Dr. Ralph S. Cushman, Rochester, N. Y., Bishop Edgar Blake, Indianapolis; Dr. Daniel A. Poling, New York, radio speaker, International Christian Endeavor president; Dr. Fred Eastman, Chicago, student of the drama and motion pictures.

For two half-day sessions the convention will divide into eight sectional meetings to discuss specific questions involved in "The Technique of an Efficient Minister," such as "How can the minister increase church attendance? How can he improve his sermons? How can he gain and hold the interest, confidence and loyalty of young people?"

Rev. Mr. McElfresh is in charge of securing registrations for the convention in this county and will urge all pastors to register early, in order to secure assignment to the sectional meetings in which they are most interested.
